design and neighbourhood

14th Birthday
of Zamek Cieszyn
1-3.03.2019

Neighbourhood is the buzzword of this year's birthday of Zamek Cieszyn. It doesn't necessarily refer to the context of Polish-Czech relations, although it might seem obvious due to Cieszyn's location right on the border. We're wondering: what does 'neighbourhood' mean today? People don't usually borrow flour or eggs from their neighbours anymore, so it's harder now to build neighbourly bonds. A person may even feel closer to someone in the other hemisphere, with no strings attached. And yet, we do realise that being part of a community is indispensable for a good life. This is why we would like to talk about how designers and architects help build good neighbourhoods.

One thing is certain:
neighbourliness begins with a meeting. Let's meet then, like neighbours, in Cieszyn!

We're also puzzled by why we often limit the notion of neighbourhood to people. After all, this is a pretty broader category: our neighbours also include swifts in their nests, armies of ants, or – if you're lucky enough – a forest. If you're a bit less lucky, you might live next door to the smoking chimney of your neighbour. Neighbourhoods can be difficult and unwelcome, like in our example, with the homeless people residing in the area of the Castle Hill.

LECTURE AND WORKSHOP

conference room, building B

Marina Haemmerle, architect, and Renate Breuss, art historian, design lecturer at Vorarlberg University of Applied Sciences

Vorarlberg is the smallest and the westernmost federal state of Austria, neighbouring with Tyrol. An attractive tourist spot, being at the same time a great example of sustainable approach to regional development based on local crafts and natural resources combined with modern design and architecture.

12.00–15.30

Day of open workshops in Cieszyn

Zamek Cieszyn's treasure are its neighbours – the artisans, designers, architects, and artists working in Cieszyn and Český Těšín. Now you have a chance to visit them!

13.30

Transgression – OPENING OF THE EXHIBITION of the Collective of the University of Silesia and the University of Zielona Góra/ entresol, building B

14.00

Difficult neighbours. About homelessness conference room, building A

A MEETING for organisations, institutions, activists, artists, and designers involved in various forms of cooperation with homeless people. The starting point for the meeting is our own experience with neighbours – homeless people whose regular presence in the area of the Castle Hill is not always to our liking.

16.00

Graduation Projects

OPENING OF THE EXHIBITION
